Due to the technical aspects of A4Go electronic toll collection, failure to update registration numbers may result in previous vehicle owner be charged with payment for using the Motorway, e.g. if a vehicle is sold and data is not updated.
5. Travelling with a vehicle having different registration number than the one assigned to a given A4Go OBU may result in failure to pay the toll for using the Motorway and this fact being reported to authorities authorised to determine the owner/user of the vehicle, and locking of the A4Go OBU. The Customer shall be obliged to settle such an outstanding payment. Should the Customer fail to settle the payment, SAM S.A. shall be entitled to seek suitable legal remedies in order to recover the outstanding payment and block the A4Go OBU. Notifications concerning occurrence of such outstanding payments shall be sent by e-mail to the address defined by the Customer or by traditional mail if the Customer does not have e-mail address. The Customer shall be responsible for providing correct addresses for correspondence and updating them in the event of changes. An ineffective notification due to a missing or incorrect address does not release the Customer from the obligation to pay the due amount.

6. Travelling with a vehicle of a different category than that assigned to the given A4Go OBU – in case of vehicles with two categories assigned – or travelling with a vehicle of a category for which there are no Credits available at the Customer Account, when at the same time no payment is made using alternative forms of payment available in TP lanes, shall be considered tantamount to a failure to cover the Motorway toll. The Customer shall be obliged to settle such an outstanding payment within a non-extendible period of 10 working days from the day of travel. After lapse of the aforementioned time limit, SAM S.A. shall be entitled to seek suitable legal remedies in order to recover the outstanding payment and to block the A4Go OBU. Notifications concerning occurrence of such outstanding payments shall be sent by e-mail to the address defined by the Customer or by traditional mail if the Customer does not have e-mail address. The Customer shall be responsible for providing correct addresses for correspondence and updating them in the event of changes. An ineffective notification due to a missing or incorrect address does not release the Customer from the obligation to pay the due amount.
7. If vehicles are towed, a fee must be paid for both the towing vehicle and the towed vehicle. Towing should be reported to the collector so that correct fees could be paid for travelling. If a vehicle equipped with active A4Go OBU is transported by a tow truck, this fact should be reported to the collector so that the tow truck driver could pay for using the Motorway in a correct manner.
